Good advice for life

Legal & General recognises that our customers are all different. You have individual aims and goals including numerous financial needs and requirements, all of which change over time. With a product range that includes investments, pensions, protection and more, Legal & General is the financial services provider that's good for a lifetime.

Making the right decisions about your finances is essential. Many of the products available today can be quite complex. Our advisers are here to offer you help and support so you completely understand what you're buying.

All of our advisers are highly qualified individuals, having passed industry recognised exams to become expert professionals in the field of financial services. This ensures that the advice you receive is always right for your needs and circumstances.

How does advice work?

All of our advisers follow the same proven advice process:

1. Identify your needs and objectives

Your adviser identifies your financial needs and objectives by asking you about your general attitudes to money, your current finances, and your aims for the future.

2. Recommendations

Your adviser will recommend the product(s) they think best suit your needs, and provide you with a personalised financial report, often suggesting a number of alternatives. You can then talk these through with your adviser and decide on the best solutions for your circumstances.

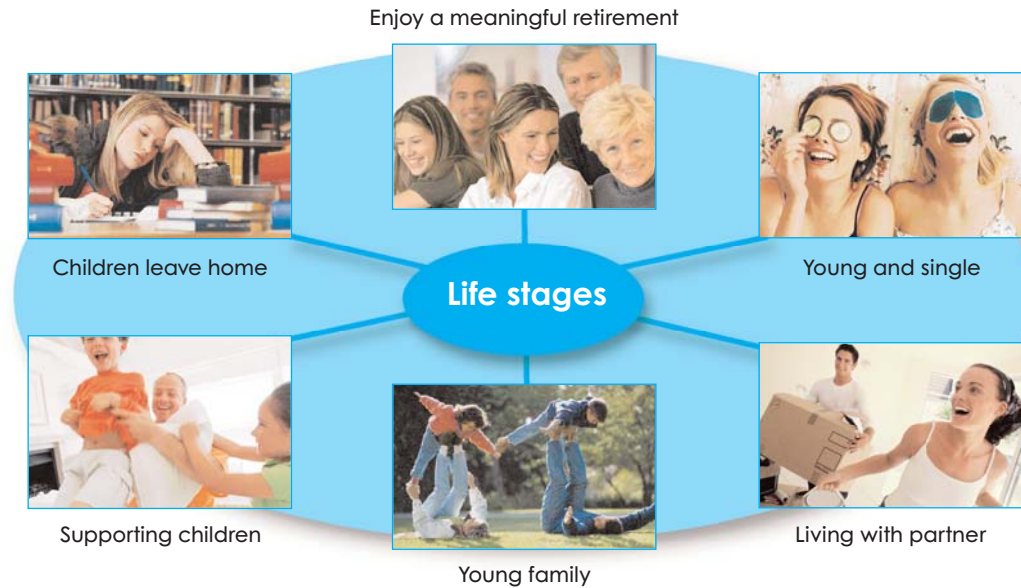

3. Ongoing communication and guidance

Your financial needs change over time so your adviser will regularly review your circumstances and recommend changes to your portfolio whenever necessary.

Why choose Legal & General?

- Expert advice on any aspect of your finances from a dedicated professional.
- Award-winning range of products and services.
- Ongoing reviews and advice as your life and finances change.

As your life changes, you can rely on Legal & General to be there with you – for all your financial needs, every single step of the way.
